Head: V. L. Willson

Graduate Advisor: K. Stramaski

The Department of Educational Psychology offers study for the PhD degree in educational psychology, counseling psychology and school psychology. Both the counseling and school psychology programs are accredited by the American Psychological Association. Students seeking the PhD in educational psychology may emphasize one of three areas of study: learning sciences, special education, or bilingual education. While each of the areas can prepare students for employment as university teachers and researchers, non-academic careers can also be pursued in areas appropriate to the study programs. For example, the counseling psychology program is designed to prepare students as counseling psychologists in college and university counseling centers, other social service settings, or public or mental health settings. The school psychology program prepares school psychologists to practice in schools and other health care settings. The special education program prepares students for professional leadership positions at universities and in field settings.

An MEd degree is available in Education Technology, Educational Psychology, Special Education and Bilingual Education. Students seeking the MEd in educational psychology may emphasize one of the following areas: learners and learning environments; school counseling; research, measurement and statistics. Within special education, NCATE/CEC accredited distinct programs are offered. The school counseling emphasis prepares students for certification by the Texas Education Agency as school counselors. Students seeking the MS in educational psychology may emphasize one of the following areas: cognition and creativity and research, measurement and statistics. An MS in Special Education and Bilingual Education is also offered.

In conjunction with its training in all areas of study, the department operates the Counseling and Assessment Clinic as a vehicle for student preparation and as a service to the University, as well as to the public and its schools. The clinic provides a modern laboratory for practicum experiences in counseling, educational and psychological assessment, and research.

Preparation as a professional in the areas of emphasis offered in the department requires attention to personal characteristics of the individual and his or her socialization into the profession, as well as to successful completion of academic coursework. In particular, students should exhibit an orientation toward fostering human development and possess characteristics conducive to helping relationships. Accordingly, the department requires that students desiring to pursue certification or degree programs satisfy the demands of the screening committee for the area of emphasis desired. These faculty committees require students to submit personal references, complete selected tests, and be interviewed by appropriate faculty members. Formal admission to a degree program, an area of emphasis or a certification program is contingent upon the appropriate screening committee’s decision concerning the individual’s total fitness and promise as a professional person in the area of emphasis for which application is made. Students in all areas of study will periodically have their total progress in professional development reviewed by a committee of the faculty offering that area of study to determine whether or not they shall be permitted to continue.

All PhD students in the counseling and school psychology programs are expected to undertake a series of supervised professional training experiences in addition to formal coursework.

Field experiences in appropriate schools, colleges or social agencies are required in all degree programs. One complete year of full-time, professional internship is required of all doctoral students in the counseling and school psychology programs.

The deadline for fall admissions to the educational psychology, counseling psychology and school psychology PhD programs is December 1. The Special Education and Bilingual Education programs also have deadlines for doctoral admission on April 1. Bilingual Education also offers a July 1 deadline. The deadlines for admission to fall Master’s programs are March 15 and October 15 for spring. Please note that the masters programs in Special Education and School Counseling only accept applications for a summer start and that deadline is February 15. Online programs in Learning Sciences, Creativity and Innovation and Educational Technology, also accept applications on July 1 for the next fall semester. Prospective students should contact the department’s academic advisor to request a copy of the pertinent program information and departmental application procedures.

Because of the professional training involved, enrollment in a number of courses is limited to students majoring in the department. Some courses are limited to students admitted to specific areas of study. Approval by the department head is required for enrollment in courses.
