

AGRICULTURAL COMMUNICATIONS AND JOURNALISM - MINOR

Students in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences seeking a minor in Agricultural Communications and Journalism should begin the process by discussing the option with their academic advisor in their major. Students should then make an appointment with an advisor in Agricultural Communications and Journalism to discuss their interests. An application is required for establishing a minor in Agricultural Communications and Journalism.

Agricultural Communications and Journalism is highly focused on written communication. Interested students should consider their interest in writing before beginning the minor.
